Trick's End '88 was a major feat from start to finish. I hesitate to mention names, but credit must be given to those who help make this book what it is: Co-Editor, Christopher Poor without whom we may not have had a yearbook, Beth Romaine who provided the support that Chris needed, Candy Peal whose support during those long work nights I couldn't have done without, Russell Proctor, Kendra Bavor, Bill Follett and Rory Hersom, our Advisors Lt. Jeffrey Wright and Lt. Dino Cherry, our publisher Steve Law, the Class of '88, and all those who contributed in one way or another. To myself, well done!

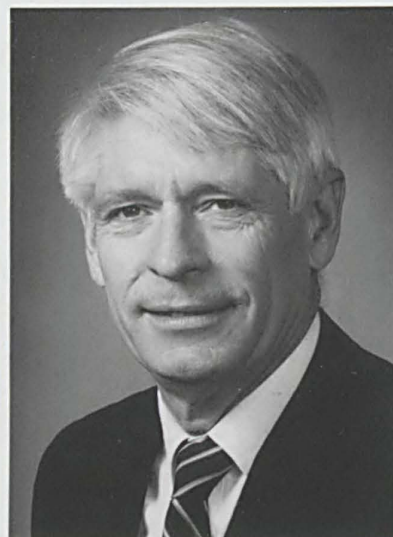

The group Air Supply sings, "We are civilized and free from all confusion, and yet we always worry for the things that we can't see . . ." To the Class of '88 I say: Though we may not be able to see the future, whatever it holds for each and every one of us will be determined by our efforts to excel.

Trick's End '88 is a picture-memoir of our struggles (great and small) through the years at Maine Maritime Academy to free ourselves from confusion, to become what our predecessors are today and to establish the foundation for our successors; for where we have walked, others are bound to follow. If we have done the job well, it will surely pay off. This is the beginning of the end. The torch is now in our hands. Let it burn for all to see, Class of '88!

Sincerely,

E. Cosby Sherman II

President Curtis

To the Class of 1988:

Successfully completing a college education and earning degree is one of life's major personal achievements.

Four years at Maine Maritime Academy is difficult and demanding; however, I expect your thoughts have already turned to the good times and to the close friends who shared these four years with you.

As you join the more than four thousand graduates of Maine Maritime Academy, we hope that you will be able to say that it was well worth the sacrifice and commitment that you made.

Many of you will, as have those before you, enjoy several different careers. Whether those careers are at sea, in the military, in management, in business, or in an entirely different direction, I can assure you that the lessons you have learned at Maine Maritime Academy will serve you well.

You have earned the congratulations of all of us at Maine Maritime Academy, and we will share the feeling of only pride as we learn of your successes in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

Kenneth M. Curtis
President

Capt. Eisenhardt
Commandant

Dear Graduates:

As your life goes on you will be defined by a lot of experiences in it. One of the most often asked questions between new acquaintances, along with those about the work you do, where you are from, etc., is "where did you go to school." Year after year I am struck by how often that question is used to form a quick preliminary judgement of a person before other issues are explored.

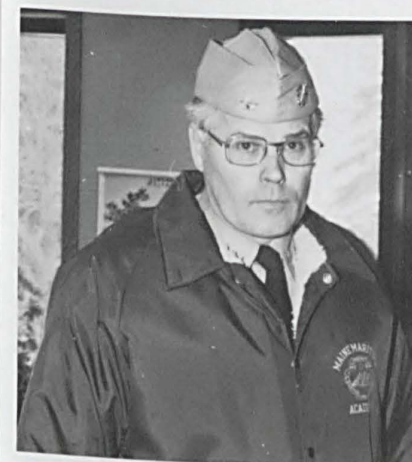

Accordingly, your four years at Maine Maritime Academy will continue to define and develop you long after you have completed your degree. The college experience is not limited to just the four or so years you physically spent there. It has far more meaning and value than that. The hard times will dim in memory, and the good times will grow sharper in focus and richer in meaning . . . and so it should be.

I came to MMA in the same month of August four years ago that most of you did. I watched both a class and an institution mature over those years and feel privileged to have taught to and learned with the Class of 1988. May your seas be calm and your winds be fair as you leave your "footprints on the sands of time."

Sincerely,

William B. Eisenhardt, Ph.D.

DEDICATION

BELFORD REDMAN

This edition of Trick's End is dedicated to Belford Redman because he was always there. His dedication to making life in Maine Maritime Academy's dormitory, Curtis Hall, more bearable and comfortable is a credit to the man.

The class of 1988 thanks you and respects you.

Class of 1988

Mary Kelleher

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT AND RETIRING

This edition of Trick's End would like to acknowledge the efforts of Ms. Kelleher. She worked in placement and cadet shipping office during her 18 years at Maine Maritime Academy.

We are sorry to have such a person leave but hope the best for her.

Her lasting words of wisdom were to work on getting in the memory banks of a company as she will last in our memories.

Elli Kelleher
Placement

To the Class of 1988:

... You know that the prior graduates have set standards of performance that you must carry on and you also know that the future, in this day and age, is beset with so many unknowns with which you must cope. You will not only meet the standards set by your predecessors but that you will push it to levels of excellence.

I thank you all for your kindness to me and my family; also to the regiment for so many happy years and allowing me to be a part.

On the road of experience, trying to find my own way,
 I'm looking to know and understand.
 The wind is the bearer of bad and good tidings;
 Wind watches over our struggles and pleasures;
 Welcome the wind and the wisdom she offers.
 Follow her summons when she calls again.
 Let the breeze surround you, pick you up and
 Look to the sea, reflections in the waves
 Spark memories, some happy some sad;
 But today's freinships make yesterday
 A dream of happiness and tomorrow
 A vision of hope.

Snowboarding is now winter's fastest market has expanded to include men and women of all ages. In fact, it is estimated that close to 200,000 Americans have joined its ranks. Snowboarders are now riding on ice, bumps and powder with amazing proficiency. Over half the country's ski areas offer snowboarding on their slopes with the trend towards ski area acceptance gaining momentum. The popularity of this American-born sport has spread across Europe, into Japan and even 'Down Under'.

Original Class of 1983 — when things were different

A harsh life growing up in the Philippines had granted her wisdom through experience.

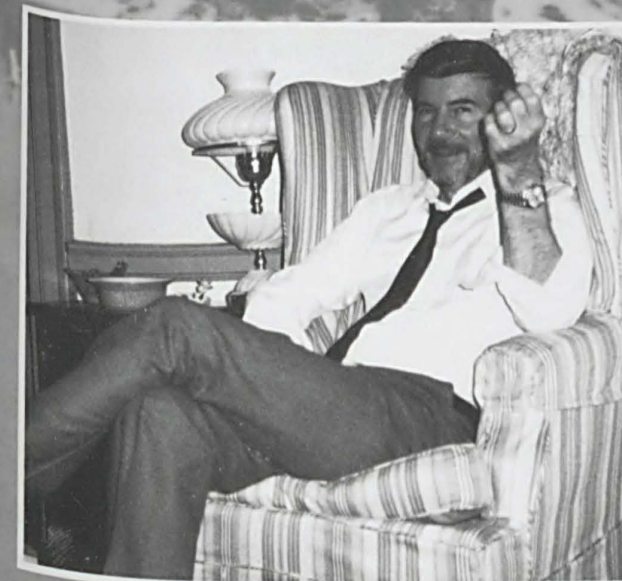

Her bravery today might well be an example to those uncertain of what may lie ahead and yet go on to new lives and challenges.

With a sweet and gentle manner, she has filled me with happiness and a will to succeed. I Love Her more each day, My Wife, Marilou.

Friends, good memories, but never again.

The best harbor pilot in the business; few who know him will argue that.
You can stop worrying now, POP!

NOTE: Five years ago I might not have put together a page reflecting good taste, but I, like MMA, have changed over the years. If I hadn't been "asked" to leave in 1983, I wouldn't have met my wife, seen great places, or achieved my engineering background. An optimistic attitude will take someone very far . . . so what the hell, I'm grateful.

LACROSSE CLUB

The Lacrosse Club will lose four seniors who have been key to the recent activities of the club. Dru Dimattia, Kevin Colgan, Troy Ammons, and Mark Gallagher have left a club legacy of scheduled activities and a wealth of equipment not found when they entered as freshmen. Along with Steve Schutt and Joe Becker they lead this year's club activities of a four-college indoor tournament and three scheduled games.

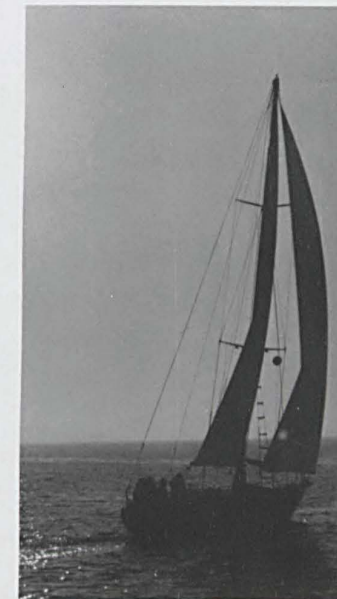

These seniors along with junior Dave Heronemus, sophomores Steve Talhimer and Andy Smith, and with freshmen such as Brian Foucher, Michael Drayton, Holly Najarian, Andy Scallin, Tony Lenzi, and Charlie Truelson formed the nucleus of a club that had alot of pleasure playing a sport truly for the fun of it.
