Dedication

There is a certain lady on campus that we go running to (or sometimes crawling) when we're not feeling to well. When we walk into sick bay, there is always a big, bright smile there to greet us. No matter what time of the day, if your feeling bad, she is the lady to see when Mom isn't there to take care of you. Whether you broke a finger playing softball or got a splinter on maintenance, she will be there to show compassion and help remedy the problem.

In dedication to the real spirit of quality that Maine Maritime Academy is all about, the Class of 1992 proudly dedicates this yearbook to school nurse Patricia James.

TO THE CLASS OF 1992:

This generation of college students has experienced change in national and world affairs on an unprecedented scale. You have seen the fall of Communism, the collapse of the Soviet Union, and the rise of pro-democracy movements throughout eastern and central Europe. The effects of these changes are just now beginning to unfold as you launch your careers.

In the years ahead, you will work in a global economy where you will confront economic and political issues which transcend national boundaries. Fortunately, your education at Maine Maritime, including foreign cruises and internships in industry, has helped to prepare you for this new and complex environment.

Public service will be a hallmark of this class, with many of you taking on commitments in the armed forces as well as in the Merchant Marine and shoreside industry. We trust that your efforts will support the cause of world peace, and that you will strive to protect our environmental and coastal resources.

On behalf of the faculty, staff, and alumni of Maine Maritime Academy, I congratulate you on your graduation. May you enjoy health, happiness, and success in all your endeavors.

Sincerely,

Kenneth M. Curtis
President

TO THE CLASS OF 1992:

As you embark on your various careers, you do so in a world that is undergoing significant change. You have seen the collapse of the Berlin Wall and from its rubble many new nations are being built. With this universal restructuring comes turmoil and economic upheaval as both new and old nations compete for position in the world marketplace. The competition is stiff and only the best will emerge on top. You have received the necessary education and training to qualify for this race, but only your personal best will put you in the lead.

Last March, the Class of 92 took charge of a revitalized Regiment and, as I expected, you moved it ahead farther and faster than ever before. As a class you received more awards than any previous class and you received every award that this Academy had to give. Under your leadership, the cruise evaluations of the underclass are the best to date, while the number of midshipmen on the Dean's List continues to grow. There is no question that you have continued the legacy of excellence left to you from those who have gone before, but above all, you have made MMA a better place for those you leave behind. I am confident you can win the race.

LCDR Frost, LT Sheridan, LT Coyle, LT Miessau and Vic Pinkhan join me in wishing each of you "fair winds and following seas." We are counting on you.

BRAVO ZULU and OOH RAH!

Indoctrination

For all of this year's fourth class, their summer was cut short, for on August 25 we all arrived here at Maine Maritime Academy. After registration and unpacking, our ears were filled by dominating full voices telling us to fall out on the bulkhead. This was just the beginning of our hell week. From that moment we were mugs and we all quickly found out that we were all just as equal as the mug next to us. During the week we became very familiar to a few phrases which were called our M.U.G. responses; "Yes Sir, No Sir, No excuse Sir, and I'll find out Sir." This was the extent of our vocabulary for the rest of the week, unless spoken to. Throughout the whole week a combination of stress, fatigue, discipline and head games were all we had to look forward to. As far as free time went, there wasn't any, for in the daylight hours we were either marching, at the obstacle course, or in the pool preparing for the ship jump. Everything we did was tied in with teamwork. All we ever heard was "don't let your M.U.G. mates burn."

After sundown we were able to relax with an evening of brass shining, shoe polishing, rack making, and more Maine Brace Memorizing. Our days started early, usually around 5:30 AM. Then we enjoyed a nice 2 min shower, shave, and room cleaning period. Then we were escorted to the field house for a brisk eye-opening PT followed by a small jog before breakfast. Our entire week followed this routine. Finally Sunday came, the day of the jump. We were all marched down to the waterfront and pumped up. Before we knew it, we were up on the gangway plugging our noses and taking the plunge. If I were to be asked as to just what INDOC was all about I'd reply that it was a week where we were all made equal and learned to trust our classmates, and mostly ourselves.

Homecoming

Homecoming is an annual event at Maine Maritime that brings together the present midshipmen of the Academy with the alumni. It gives the alumni the opportunity to catch up on present day activities, see changes to the school that have occurred over the years, reminisce with old classmates, and tell present day students what life is really like on the open seas. For the midshipmen, it allows them to ask the alumni important questions, of which the answers could not be found in textbooks. This year's homecoming was marked by the ceremonial marching on the field of the Regimental classes. They were led on by the Regimental wedge and each company by their company wedge. Classes from days past filed onto the field and each one thought of the time when they first marched on the field with their school.

It is a time for both the past and future students. The alumni looked back on their college years while the midshipmen looked ahead to their shipping years; all brought together at Maine Maritime Academy homecoming.

AMBULANCE

One of the most important jobs here at MMA and in the town of Castine is one that is hardly ever thought of, until someone is in need of help, then the Bagaduce Ambulance Corp. is called upon. The members of this corp are dedicated, trained volunteers, who are often on continuous call for any emergency that might occur. They spend countless hours training and practicing, so that the moment an emergency arises they are prepared. Thanks, we appreciate all that you do!

Coit, Pulkinen, O'Halloran, Griffith, Spratt, Kaminsky.

BAND

Every morning at colors, the members of the Regiment hear the Star Spangled Banner played by the members of the Academy band. But they do not stop there, for the band is called upon during the year to perform at all home basketball games, graduation, Homecoming, Football games, and any other special events that require the well tuned sounds of this diversified ensemble. The members of the band spend hours formally practicing as well as informally, and one can easily tell from their smooth sound. They are indeed an invaluable asset at the Academy.

CHEERING

At all home basketball games, the MMA Cheerleading squad can easily be seen entertaining the crowd and giving the team some enthusiastic support. With only one member of last year's team choosing to return, there were a lot of cheers to be rehearsed and re-rehearsed to perfection. They certainly prove to be an crowd pleaser with a halftime routine to add pep and zip to the atmosphere. Rah, Rah!

Mailshack

One of the highest points in the exciting life of the midshipmen here at the academy is when they go to their mailbox and see a letter from anyone, as long as it's not an official school envelope. Some people receive demos, others perfume scented cards, but whatever they receive, it is put in there by the busy workers of the mailshack. Each worker sorts through the mountains of mail, and places it in the little combination locked cubicles that serve as a link to the outside world for students. We appreciate these guys and what they do, more than they realize.

HOCKEY

As a club at Maine Maritime, The Hockey Club has a large following of fans and players. They play a number of games against other colleges, and practice in Orono late at night, taking a toll on the players. Most of them have had years of Hockey experience while playing in high school while others are inexperienced, giving the team a good blend of talent. Best wishes to the graduating seniors and to the team.

RA's

The RA program here at the Academy has proved itself to be an invaluable success. The RAs are representatives from the residents to those in charge of the dormitory. They listen to our gripes from room changes to dorm rules and watch out for any disturbances that can cause damage to people or property. Weekly meetings tell of new news or information and developments in the ongoing struggle to improve the facilities, and with an excellent RA staff, it seems to be getting better.

RUGBY

Ruggers, as they are commonly called here on campus, are an elite group of students who prefer to never smile for a photo or wash their shirt during the season. This club is perhaps the fastest growing on campus and plays other colleges to peak performance levels. This season was special when two women joined and proved to everyone at the academy that Rugby is not just a sport for men anymore.

INDOOR SOCCER

This year the Indoor Soccer Club became very popular, and what a successful year it was. Most of the team was made of players from the Varsity Soccer Team, but others joined to chase away the Castine blues that seem to come in the winter months. At the Maine Maritime Tournament they took second place, which they so richly deserved after those hard hours of practice. With only two members graduating, this club is one to look for in the futures.

MARINER FOOTBALL

This year the Football program at the Academy was one that would catch the student's attention. From the start of the season, one could easily see the improvement since last year and could only imagine just how great the team would perform within the coming years.

Lead by John Guss and Dave Robinson, the team was fortunate enough to lose only one senior last year. The offense and defense both grew, in strength and ability.

This could have easily been seen in the highlight of the season with a win against Plymouth State, a team that had dominated our conference. This win not only helped the morale of our Mariner team, who knew that determination would win in the end, but it let a lot more people know about the team.

Although Kirk Mathieu, a returning player, could not play due to injury, the Mariners proved themselves a team to be reckoned with.

SOCCER

The Maine Maritime Academy Soccer Team had its share of ups and downs this season. With a record of 2-11-1 it is easy to see why. The three returning seniors- Scott Varney, Chris Blanchard, and Benny Donaher- had to pick up for the inexperience of some of the incoming freshmen. Practice and dedication of the team members promises only good things to come, and with Charlie Gross as head coach, we look forward to many winning seasons. Afternoon practices are held every day, and not even the weekends are safe from a grueling game or two. With support from students and faculty and hard work, the MMA Soccer Team will prove to be a threat to any opponent.

Summer Sailing '91

This year's Maine Maritime Academy Sailing Team broke numerous personal and school records. With only a few graduating seniors, the 1992 team was well experienced with underclassmen. A highly qualified number of freshmen only helped the team, which has continuously tried to overcome obstacles and regain valued recognition. Practice was held every day after school, but the commitment did not stop there. Team meetings were regularly held, in order to better prepare for weekend regattas. And this could easily be seen in the team record. The MMA sailing team is for the sailing enthusiast in everyone, with or without experience, for one can visibly see just how hard work and dedication pays off.

BASKETBALL

Basketball is becoming a very integral varsity sport here at Maine Maritime for many reasons. It could be that it keeps a student busy during those times here at the academy when there is not a lot to do, or that being a part of a team that only seems to be improving with practice is the answer. Whatever it is, the varsity players do seem to be improving, and at a fast pace. With the loss of a key player early in the season, the determination of the team to have a great season grew, for they had to prove something to themselves, and they certainly did, thanks to the hard work of Coach Charlie Gross and newcomer, Assistant Coach Lahey, who brought new ideas to the team. Any fan who managed to find a seat in the crowded bleachers could easily see what an exciting season this growing team had. Congratulations Mariners, and best of luck in the future.

Cross Country

Powered by a trio of first year runners, the 1992 Mariners exceeded the expectations of Coach Jim Wiltgen by winning two meets and finishing second in one other meet. Those wins allowed the youthful Mariners the opportunity they needed to post upsets against UMPI and USM. 4/C Sean Cullen led the team to victory by winning the home Mariner Invitational and placed first among all team members throughout the year. 4/C Kory Kozar surged at the end of the year to become the number two runner, and 4/C Frank Smith provided a steady contribution in the top three spots all year long. 2/C Chris Riel used his potent kick in many meets to help pace the team and

1/C Vince Perry provided leadership as the team's captain and finished each race in the top seven. 3/C Mike Blastos, first year runner Ray Dorsett, and 4/C Robert Blackwell round out the runners who ran varsity for much of the year. The team boasted considerable depth that helped to push the varsity runners with a talented roster that included 2/C Peter Mento, 2/C Phil Kent, 4/C Attapol Sookma, and 4/C Russell Harriman. The sole female runner was 3/C Amy Stewart, who ran well and recorded strong finishes in the Mariner Invitational by placing 4th and at Unity by placing 6th. Congratulations!

DRILL TEAM

The Maine Maritime Academy's Drill Team is one of the prides of this school, and when one sees them in action, they will easily know why. Their precision and agility is incredible, and often seems impossible to a viewer in the stands. The Drill Team, headed up by 1/c Tina Vanderploeg practices every day after school and performs at football and basketball games, as well as morning colors. Hard work and dedication pays off for them as their skills improve year by year. Good Luck to the graduating Seniors, and to the remaining Drill Team members.

Philadelphia

After only a few short days at sea, we pulled up the Delaware Channel into the Port of Philadelphia, a breathtakingly beautiful city whose streetlights never seem to go out. Once fully berthed, the eager midshipmen began to pile up on the Quarterdeck; the city was theirs for the taking. For many of them, it was the first time they had ever seen a building that was larger than four stories, let alone a whole city full of them. Philadelphia is the fifth largest city in the United States, but somehow it was not big enough for adventure-starved midshipmen. Some found happiness in the many bars that lined the trash-lined streets, while some shopped at the galleries and malls. Others took in the historical sites that made Philly famous.

Sadly enough, the week in this eastern heaven went by quickly, and it was soon time to make the long journey to Europe. So the midshipmen loaded up on cheesesteaks and pretzels and set sail for their next port.

Portsmouth, England

For many of us, Portsmouth England was our taste of Europe, and what a taste it was! England held new experiences for us: a different culture, a different accent (besides that of Maine), and a different drinking age. We got the opportunity to meet with new people and see various sites that we would only dream of seeing. Tourists attractions and historical landmarks such as Big Ben, Buckingham Palace, Picadilly Circus, and Stonehenge were visited by most midshipmen. So many vivid memories remain of this port because of the friendly manner of the English, who would always invite a midshipman into a pub, and not for a drink of tea. Also the friends seemed to make even a sixty day cruise on the T.V. State of Maine enjoyable. These memories will last a lifetime.

Leningrad, Russia

The highlight of our 1988 Cruise had to be that of Leningrad, Russia. Few people have ever had the opportunity to visit this country, one that had been our enemy since we were born. Leningrad was drastically different from anything we had seen before, and to our surprise the native people of this country were too. The Midshipmen responded well to Russian culture, and quickly began to trade whatever valuables they had brought aboard with anything the Russians had to offer. Warm, wooly, fur hats seem to be one of the hottest items, as were genuine Russian flags. With dramatic changes that recently happened in Russia and other Eastern-bloc countries, it was an honor to see Russia when it was still one nation.

Copenhagen

As the last port of this cruise, Copenhagen was one that would not be easy to forget. It opened our eyes to the culture of the Danish, and eased our anxiety to return back to the United States.

Copenhagen is a city of various sights and sounds. From magnificent fountains that towered over even the tallest midshipmen, to beaches that were not so private, it served as a relaxing port for all to sit back and enjoy the splendour of Europe. Last-minute souvenir shopping was done by anyone who had any money left, and monuments were seen.

It was the last time to really hang around with friends, except for the half hour breaks during maintenance, so group photos were taken and rounds bought. It was a port that would last a lifetime.

PHILADELPHIA

The City of Philadelphia served a variety of purposes as the first port on Cruise 1991. Not only is it of ready access to a fire training center for the fourth class, but it also helps to break in those who actually think that Portland is a booming metropolis. Philly is labeled as a "Working Port", which means that liberty is usually not granted until 1600, and at that time one can see an influx of middies heading straight for South Street, where anything can be found.

As the upperclass works around the ship, each company of fourth class are bussed into New Jersey, where among the rolling hills and plush forests can be found a fire training school for the Navy. Here many of us got our first experience with fire fighting. Sadly though, The T.V. State of Maine had to depart from this port and move on, but not before breaking down off the coast of Delaware, and leaving us a day behind for Port Canaveral.

PORT CANAVERAL

We pulled into Port Canaveral after an eventful trip from Philadelphia, Pa. Anxious middies escaped from the ship into the warm, humid Florida air to find the nearest beach, or bar, and enjoyed the tropical air. While some enjoyed Cocoa Beach, others signed on for the trip to Epcot or Disney World, the water parks, or the Kennedy Space Center. Some of the luckier ones were able to smuggle lettuce off the mess-deck to feed the curious Manatee, as the large gentle animal explored the water near the ship's pier. The Navy donated a van to help transport the beachgoers to the center of town, a couple of miles away, while others rented cars to get to Orlando and Daytona, as well as some of the more popular escapes. While we took on bunkers, the D.C. Squad was given the opportunity to practice their skills as the engine room experienced some minor problems. Cape Canaveral allowed those with the cash to do some shopping at Ron Jon's Surf Shop, and others to tour the Radar Tracking Ship which was berthed next to the State of Maine. After four days in Florida, we left to continue in the warm water for four days in the Bahamas.

BAHAMAS

After leaving Port Canaveral, a strange thing happened aboard the State of Maine. As the blue water of the Atlantic turned into a brilliant clear blue, and the sun began to shine hotter and brighter, the thought of an island paradise took over everyone, and one was found in the Bahamas. To most midshipmen, this was the first foreign country any one of us had ever visited. As the first liberty call was piped, scores of sailors, ready to shop or relax on a white sandy beach, teamed down the ship's walkway.

The Bahamas offered natives with dreadlocks who would do anything for an American dollar, water so clear that one could actually see right down to the bottom and count their toes, and typical souvenirs at the cheapest possible prices. And as the midshipmen enjoyed this island that they had found, no one thought of the month and a half left of watches and maintenance, for it was time to enjoy this getaway; after all, it is better in the Bahamas.

QUEBEC

As the State of Maine journeyed through the St. Lawrence Seaway, a beautiful city came into the view of Midshipmen who were shivering on deck due to the change in temperatures of our last port of call. Quebec City dazzled our eyes, tempted our tastebuds that were sick of a straight week of mess deck food, and puzzled those who did not understand a single word of the French language. We wandered its long, windy, and steep streets that lead to sights of grandeur, and danced the night away in clubs that seemed to be everywhere. Aside from the chilly, rainy days, Quebec City was enjoyed by all. Probably one of the most popular reasons was because it was a city of such diversity. In many areas the old blended with the new in unique ways that few had ever seen. Quebec City was a change of pace, not only from the warm Caribbean sun, and the English language, but for its likeness to nothing most of us had ever experienced before.

BERMUDA

On June 12, 1991, we found an island paradise after days at sea. Bermuda was a beautiful island, which allowed us to play on its beaches and golf courses and enjoy Captain Teel's songs on fishing boats moored in the slips next to the State of Maine. The local U.S. Navy Base put on an excellent picnic and allowed the midshipmen to use their facilities. We rode on rented mopeds, walked, or bicycled around the island. We found many an attraction to souvenir shops, to pass the time. The sunsets were beautiful, but that is when the nightlife began. Even though it almost got us thrown out of bars early, all hands had an excellent time, up until the ship's sanitation system forced us to leave. But I, for one, carried away from that island paradise fond memories and plenty of souvenirs.

SENIOR SHOTS

Cadet Shipping

Cadet Shipping is one of the most memorable experiences here at the Academy. The reason is not because it is not held here at the Academy, but it is a true working experience without the pay. On cadet shipping there are no colors, no cleaning stations, and no room inspections, such as on a training cruise, so in a twisted way, it all equals out. A Cadet meets many diversified people and sees the work field as it truly is. At this point, he or she will realize if this is the job that they want to do for the rest of their life. The experience one gains from these two months at sea will teach any midshipmen rules of the road, both written and unwritten. Although the pay is minimal, the experience and memories are irreplaceable.

OPEN SEAS

For many midshipmen, life on the open seas provides a challenge — how to occupy their time when work is done for the day. Since nobody can just jump in their car and drive to a mall, or sit down in a favorite chair to watch Cheers reruns all night, one must have a good imagination. Many students brought VCR's into their rooms, and made the nightly ritual to the ship's video store for a night matinee. The unlucky ones had to watch the movie screen in the number two hold, or the small tv located in the Maine lounge. Occasionally, there are special days where a party is held, such as Casino Night, or the 'Mocktail' party. These allow some students and crew the opportunity to show off their skills in the areas of bartending, singing, playing instruments, and gambling. Cruise allows midshipmen the chance to see just how well they like shipping. Only when they experience just how it feels not to see land for days on end can they decide how well they like life on the Open Seas.

COMING HOME

After sixty long days at sea, there is no better sight to a Maine Maritime Midshipman than that of Castine. Even though no place is the same as home, Castine serves as a reminder that home is just a car drive or a plane ride away.

As the State of Maine pulls up to her dock, one can easily notice how she lists to port, as everyone tries to catch a first glimpse of their loved ones on the pier. From the time that the first lines are tossed and secured, various thoughts flow through everyone's mind — that of cleaning up their room, or quickly finishing an engine room diagram that was due three weeks ago.

But soon the walkway is put into place as the unused supplies are unloaded and memories are quickly exchanged to moms and dads just as bags of dirty laundry are. Eventually goodbyes are said to friends who endured the good and bad times, and the cars are packed up to go.

Training Cruise is a rewarding experience that allows a person to grow, but it is sure great to come home.

Ring Dance

For every 2nd Class Midshipman, one of the most important events of the year is the Ring Dance. It is the moment when we realize that our time in the Academy is coming to an end, and it allows us to reflect on the past years.

Once all the final arrangements had been made and decorations put in their proper place, midshipmen and their dates began to arrive. After a grand entrance with an honor guard present, and swords raised, photographs are taken, and the couple is seated, awaiting the highlight of the evening.

After the dipping of the rings and the socializing with friends is over, the night is still young for most of the midshipmen. The decorations are torn down, but the memories remain for a lifetime.

The Boat holds me;
Sea Joined, Wind-Lifted
I rest in its embrace.

The brown sail, molded in a hollow curve from vanished boom to peak of graff, give shape to the wind over my head and the tiller, with tender pressure, quivers in balance with the sails and wind and ruffled water. The wave-slapped hull slides through the sea.

THIS FLAG IS OUR FLAG

For more than 90 years this flag has flown on every Lykes vessel - in times of peace and times of war - wherever in the world we've sailed.

Today this flag means jobs for seamen, work for longshoremen, careers in our offices throughout the world, and returns to our investors.

As the "Diamond L" enters ports from Antwerp to Djakarta it means goods produced around the world are getting to the global marketplaces. It means our company continues to provide the finest ocean transportation and intermodal capabilities available. It means the same company that re-opened the shipping doors to China and operated the first American commercial vessel to call Kuwait after Operation Desert Storm continues its long tradition of excellence.

Our flag flies proudly. It's a symbol of the determination which makes us the best - for yesterday, today, and tomorrow.

You made a smart decision when you chose MMA.

Now it's time to make another.

The sooner you develop a personal financial plan, the more secure your future will be. Our financial specialists can show you the benefits of planning early in life, and advise you on the many investment options available to you.

So why not invest in your future right from the start with a visit to Union Trust, today.
